1. From Protection to Needs and Rights of Vulnerable Groups
1. From Protection to Needs and Rights of Vulnerable Groups

Broadening from protection-based to also a rights- and needs-based approach

Traditional groups and issues
- Women, children, elderly, disabled people
- Refugees, displaced or stateless persons, minorities
- Indigenous peoples, migrant workers

New groups and issues
- Right to development, nutrition, mental health care, unemployed people, housing, climate
- Basic learning needs, special needs education, technological inclusion
1. From Protection to Needs and Rights of Vulnerable Groups

Human Rights and Social Inclusion of Vulnerable Groups

- Protection of vulnerable groups has been historically linked to protection of human rights.
- Some vulnerable groups have been object of specific international conventions, but their groups have not been the focus of States’ standard-setting endeavors.
  - Women, children, refugees, displaced or stateless persons, minorities, indigenous peoples, migrant workers, disabled people, etc.
- New international, national and local instruments specifying actions and protection mechanisms are no longer included within the umbrella of human rights protection.
1. From Protection to Needs and Rights of Vulnerable Groups

• The 1948 Universal Declaration on Human Rights provides by far the most widely accepted definition of human rights, encompassing civil and political as well as economic, social and cultural rights, all sharing the principles of universality and indivisibility.

• Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (1979)

• UN Declaration on the Rights of Indigenous Peoples (2007)

• There are other numerous international and national laws protecting specific vulnerable groups.
2. Global, Regional, National and Local Policy & Legislative Frameworks
The Vienna Declaration and Program of Action of 1993 highlighted vulnerability

2. Global, Regional, National and Local Policy & Legislative Frameworks

Global approaches to vulnerability

- Human rights remain the basis for protection of vulnerable groups
- It is acknowledged that vulnerable groups need extra assistance
- Vulnerability cannot be tackled without the participation of those citizens that suffer it
2. Global, Regional, National and Local Policy & Legislative Frameworks

Since 1993, action on vulnerability has increased at supranational level, in both the UN and other international frameworks

The 2030 Agenda and SDGs
2. Global, Regional, National and Local Policy & Legislative Frameworks

Global approaches to vulnerability

• The UN DESA Report on the World Social Situation 2018 examines the contribution of social protection to social inclusion, focusing on seven often disadvantaged groups: children, youth, older persons, persons with disabilities, international migrants, ethnic and racial minorities, and indigenous peoples.

2. Global, Regional, National and Local Policy & Legislative Frameworks

The Report mentions three conditions which must be fulfilled:

1. Availability: In recent years, many low-income countries have rapidly expanded access to social protection, mainly through tax-financed programmes. Some of these are grounded in solid legal frameworks.

2. Access: Even in a policy framework grounded in universalism, however, certain segments of the population face greater challenges than others in overcoming poverty and social exclusion. Special measures may be necessary. Targeting is widely used to reach those individuals and groups most in need.

3. Adequacy: If social protection systems are to make a meaningful impact on inclusion, many countries will need to increase investments in social protection and sustain such investments through economic cycles.

2. Global, Regional, National and Local Policy & Legislative Frameworks

Global approaches to vulnerability

- The Open-Ended Working Group on Ageing was established by the General Assembly by resolution 65/182 on 21 December 2010. The working group will consider the existing international framework of the human rights of older persons and identify possible gaps and how best to address them, including by considering, as appropriate, the feasibility of further instruments and measures.

2. Global, Regional, National and Local Policy & Legislative Frameworks

Global approaches to vulnerability

- The World Programme of Action for Youth (WPAY) adopted by the United Nations General Assembly in 1995, provides a policy framework and practical guidelines for national action and international support to improve the situation of young people around the world. The WPAY covers fifteen youth priority areas and contains proposals for action in each of these areas.

Regional approaches to vulnerability

- The European Court of Human Rights (ECHR) is increasingly referring to vulnerability.
- The American Regional Conference on Migration has adopted regional guidelines applying for migrant populations in vulnerable situations.
- The African Union has created a Social Welfare and Vulnerable Groups division.
- The Asia-Pacific Economic Cooperation organization has initiated work on vulnerability.
- The ASEAN has created a Regional Risk and Vulnerability Assessment.
In general, typical/traditional approaches at the national level include:

- Ensuring political attention and policy focus by the government on vulnerable groups
- Ensuring that social protection is inclusive
- Improving human rights situation
- Ensuring participation and access to justice for vulnerable groups
- Setting-up and institutionalizing mechanisms for direct engagement of vulnerable groups
2. Global, Regional, National and Local Policy & Legislative Frameworks

National approaches to vulnerability

- UK National Children’s Bureau
  - direct engagement with vulnerable groups, general principles for action, direct contact with other bodies and institutions when needed (coordination and action)

- India Framework for Climate Change Vulnerability Assessment
  - identification of new vulnerabilities, in this case related to climate change; establishment of practical methods and tools to be adapted to concrete situations.

- Philippines Social protection for inclusive growth
  - based on multi-stakeholder engagement and proactive answer to vulnerability (e.g. identification of the near poor, enhancing social protection and insurance and setting up convergence mechanisms)
Local approaches to vulnerability

Typical practices at the local level include:

- Local health care programmes
- Social housing programmes
- Inclusive monitoring programmes on discrimination of vulnerable groups
- Making digital communication, including for education, available for all
2. Global, Regional, National and Local Policy & Legislative Frameworks

Local approaches to vulnerability

- In Central African Republic, local initiatives to overcome disease outbreaks have been successful.
- In Sri Lanka, village child rights monitoring committees have been created to ensure that they are respected.
- In Toronto (Canada), the Community Housing Authority uses the city’s definition of vulnerability as a basis to interact with residents.
3. Areas of Limitations & Need for Innovation
3. Areas of Limitations & Need for Innovation

• Not all traditional policies and legislative frameworks are fully adapted to address the dynamically evolving needs of vulnerable groups.

• In addition, these frameworks need to transform to accommodate the changing contextual environments – e.g. changing industrial structure, urbanization, informatization, etc.

• No clear defining of the role of each stakeholder such as civil society organizations, private sector, vulnerable groups, local communities, etc. for social inclusion and lack of meaningful engagement with other stakeholders.

• Lack of means of effective implementation.
3. Areas of Limitations & Need for Innovation

Legislative frameworks are slow to innovate

- Traditional, formal legislative/policy instruments are important but slow in adapting to new circumstances
- Societies are increasingly complex and informal institutions like networks, virtual and real communities, and partnerships play an increasing role
- Such informal institutions can help accelerating innovation while the legislative framework will catch up later because it takes more time.
- Informal institutions require strong, adaptive and innovative government, to ensure checks and balances, and justice for all
3. Areas of Limitations & Need for Innovation

Innovative approaches in public service delivery

• Current government innovations are often focusing on digitalization, use of frontier technologies, ID registration, e-government, etc.

• In addition, people-centered public services are needed to overcome gaps and address vulnerability. This means:
  ➢ Designing public service delivery around the needs of people rather than the organizational structure of the government
  ➢ Understanding people’s needs and striving for people satisfaction
  ➢ Moving from governing for people to governing with people
  ➢ Turning people into partners, collaborators and co-creators of public services.
  ➢ Focus on creating external value for the citizens
3. Areas of Limitations & Need for Innovation

Governments operate in an environment of increasing change. This requires moving innovation from the sporadic to the systemic. Innovation needs to be a resource that governments can reliably and consistently draw on. The following are some of the key drivers for change.

- Changing Functions: In an environment of change, governments must also change how they operate.
- Running to Stay in Place: In an evolving economy, governments have to change policy settings just in order to maintain the same outcomes.
- No Room for Spectators: In order to remain effective decision-makers, governments have to have experiential knowledge of innovation; they cannot wait for the answers to be given to them.
- Risk of a Mismatch: A government that does not innovate is one that is at risk of always being behind, always reacting yet forever disappointing.
- Innovation as a Core Competency: The need for innovation can strike anywhere, therefore everyone must be ready to play a part.

SWOT analysis of the existing legal and policy frameworks

SWOT ANALYSIS

- Strengths
- Weaknesses
- Opportunities
- Threats
Group Work (1)

Then, discuss in your group:

- Based on the SWOT analysis, what changes do you think should be made in your legislation, regulatory and policy frameworks?
- What other points from the SWOT analysis could be added to the Action Planning to be further developed during the Module 12?

Video & Group Discussion

The role of non-governmental actors in the current policy & legal frameworks on vulnerability

The video (11 min.) gives a powerful example of how communities in Somalia are trying to solve local conflicts and build peace by bringing people from all segments of society together at traditional community assemblies, or “Shirarka”. These events involve representatives from all clans and sub-clans as well as women, young people, professionals, elders, and religious leaders and strengthen people’s capacity to become active peacemakers in their communities.

Video & Group Discussion
The role of non-governmental actors in the current policy & legal frameworks on vulnerability

Discuss below questions in your group:

• Which ideas or insights do you want to share after having seen the video?
• For which vulnerable groups in your country would a local community approach, in partnership with other actors, including some role for government, deliver solutions for vulnerable groups?
• What is the role of government in this case? Is there a need to innovate legislation or policies to enable other actors’ participation in improving social inclusion of vulnerable groups?
